

Killian was born in November 2003

He was diagnosed with autism severe in the UK when he was almost 3 years old. He has other disorders like Developmental coordination disorder, communication disorder, vision processing disorder, sensory processing disorder he has got anxiety, but has not gotten an anxiety disorder diagnosis and we are checking on that and how to help him although it is nothing like it used to be while he was in public school. No panic attacks of that level at all

We have done HBOT for him and it helped quite dramatically, the improvements were amazing.

He has a little brother Kenneth who is 4. They play a lot together but it is difficult for Killian to think of doing things his brother likes and letting go if things are not done his way. He can be very rigid about interactions with other children. He has a home program that I am trying to keep alive (funded) for his sake.

He is my life and I adore him. He is so strong and perseveres every day to improve himself. It is amazing how much work he can do knowing that would help him improve himself. He is a trooper and never gives up even when he is tired.... he has his down times, but can be redirected with the idea that it would help him be a in a big boy's school or make more friends. He cares very much about having friends.

The best thing about Killian is that he is an extremely loving boy. He is so sweet and caring!!! He also is a fantastic singer-- can sing pitch perfect with the right tunes...

I will see if his music therapy teacher has a recording to send you if you are interested.

I love him so much...

big hugs and a thank you
